

The Short Race is now an official stage on the Mountain Running World Cup calendar

Only those well-organized high-quality races in truly unique locations earn the privilege of being part of trail running's national and international level circuits.

In 2015, the MaXi-Race hosted the Trail Running World Championships, and today the Short Race covering 16km and 950 meters of vertical gain, will be the first stage for the 2019 Mountain Running World Cup!

SHORT RACE, Friday, May 24, starts in Menthon at 19:00

The Short Race is now part of the Mountain Running World Cup and is the only stage in France.

The Mountain Running World Cup is organized by the World Mountain Running Association (WMRA), in partnership with the IAAF, and counts 7 races in 7 countries.

In total, 140km of trails to run, with 9300m of vertical gain and 5600m of vertical drop.

The winners of each stage will receive prize money.

“Being chosen as a stage for the 2019 World Cup is great recognition for the organizing team and volunteers, as well as a guarantee that athletes from around the world will come to the race. What a fantastic opportunity for them to explore the mountains around Lake Annecy. With top international runners competing in this short but demanding race, a record or two will likely be broken. The Short Race will offer an incredible display of trail running talent,” says race director, Stephane Agnoli.

The Short Race is also part of the YOUNG TRAIL CHALLENGE

It was only natural in 2017 that the MaXi-Race, along with three other major local race organizers, created the 1st ever youth trail running race series in Europe! "The Young Trail Challenge" targets youth trail runners in the Junior and Espoir categories, offering them the chance to compete in 4 races, each 15km long with 1500m of vertical gain.

Racers can register via the website for each race. For more information head to www.theyoungtrailchallenge.fr/

Among the 11 race formats, the Marathon Race is also now part of an international circuit The GOLDEN TRAIL NATIONAL SERIES

The 40km Marathon Race, one of the 11 races during Salomon Gore-Tex® MaXi Race, is now an official stage on the GTNS calendar. After a successful 2018 Golden Trail World Series, 2019 is the launch year for the Golden Trail National Series (GTNS). This new race series includes several well-known events from countries like France and Spain, with plans to expand elsewhere in the future.

The GTNS, with 4 scheduled races, will focus on the best national-level trail runners and offer them the chance to be invited to compete in the GTWS the following year.
